Those particular mandarins are simply dead aspiration for social and economic inand buried, extinguished by an imagina- dependence. tive Force. Other mandarins live patriarchally on, who, when some one writes a great novel about a municipal struggle, will say again, . This will never do. And they, too, in their turn will suffer extinction. You may have noticed that art progresses only over the dead bodies of mandarins. Balzac, who did more to emancipate the novelthan even Richardson or Scott, killed dozens of mandarins, and to the untime-1260 ly end of his career he never troubled to hide his murderous scorn of them. ... What separates Balzac from nearly all other novelists is not his width of range in the portrayal of individuals, but his faculty for portraying communities, and for describing large 1815 cooperative activities. The world is made up of individuals, but it is also TYPO-PHOSPHIE OF LIME made up of communities, and the com munity is surely as interesting as the individual. Why, then, should the novelist confine himself to the one or the few? A hundred sheep are mo interesting than one, or than five. Note that the deification of love in tiction in volves the sacrifice of the community as a subject. Men and women make love not as members of a community, but a individuals; but when they proceed to other affairs, they at once resume their position in the community. In a world more complex than the

of Balzac, a world where mutual com prehension and imaginative sympathy are the conditions precedent to any rea social progress, our novelists, whose supreme function it is to promote by their imagination such imaginative sympathy, go on with their endless repetition of an erotic pattern. Love will survive the neglect of nevelists; have no fear. The poets can safely be left to Sameness, futility, and lack of en- attend to love for a while, thus allowing : men and a maid, or two maids and a humunity, an impulse equal with the man. every human activity save love (or and she feels instinctively that the purany serious sense comes into her existence. Hence it is that the lovestory of this century will deal less with external, and more and more with the internal conflict which will go on within . the woman herself—the conflict between love on the one side and ambition and the desire for freedom on the other. The liction of the past ten years gives some indication of such a change of theme. Mrs Humphry Ward and Mrs Deland have shown as love struggling lagainst religious prejudices Marcel Prevost, in his latest novels, depicts the strife between the emotional element in woman's nature and her new born

> The final result which Mr Burton thinks that he foresers is the subordination of the love element in all our fiction: because, apparently, he believes that it will be in like manner subordinated in our life. This is a hard saying and somewhat difficult to accept; for whatever else may change, the fundamental passions and emotions can hardly be conceived of as no longer lying at the base of human motive and human action. It may be possible, however, that in fiction Mr Burton's prophecy will come true. It is a curious fact that in English literature, as distinct from

has, in reality, always held a comparatively unimportant place. And this is not at all because romantic love plays any smaller part in our life than in the life of other peoples. Perhaps it is because the Anglo-Saxon, with a certain racial shyness and reserve, speaks least about what he feels most. Certainly it is a fact that in-very few of the greatest novels of our language is the love element an essential part; but it is both introduced and developed in a more or less perfunctory way. We can not recall a single one of Scott's romances in which the love part could not be absolutely eliminated without serious detriment to: the story. The same thing is measurably true of Dickens and (with the exception of 'Henry Esmond'') of Thackeray as well. Such robust novels as 'Tom Jones' and 'Joseph Andrews' contain a good deal of love, but it is love of a sort which is scarcely deserving of the name. The nearest approach in English literature to the French method of dealing with the subject is found in Clarissa Harlowe, which no one any longer reads.

In his report on the trade of Szemao for the year 1900, Mr Carey, The Assistant in charge of the Imperial Chinese Customs at that " port," bears out what has already appeared in the report on the Shan States as to the condition of the Chinese Shan States, | CITY OF FICE, or the Sipsong Panna. With Military Honours.

We get an occasional laugh in this dark region, writes a Cape Coast correspondent to a home paper. A little while ago the Gold Coast Government sent out a circular to the Europeans, urging them for their own protection to volunteer for the Maxim gun detachments. As an extra inducemen the circular contains the following: * Members will be entitled to a military funeral. A military funeral is a coveted thing-by the natives. The other day a chief died, and his lieges buried him with the native substitute for military honours. The ' Desc March' was played with a particularly vigorous drum accompaniment. After the interment the band struck up, 'Oh, where oh, where I is my little dog gone ?' 'What's in a Name.' The controversy as to what is the longest word still goes on. We have already mentioned several claimants, of which 'antidisestablishmentarianism' (twenty-eight letters) appears togbe the longest legitimate English word: As to the longest word in any language, a writer in The Living Church thinks the following word bears the palm, namely. 'Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerchwyrndrobwlltys i lf i of g of g m agoch.' 'It is the name of a village in North Wales,' says the writer, 'and while lunching at a Welsh inn at Bettws-y-Coed recently I heard the name pronounced with perfect case and clearness by a young Welshman.' But, according to another clerical correspondent of the same journal, this word simply 'isn't in it' with the Greek word for 'hash,' of one hundred and seventy-two letters, to be found in Liddell and Scott's unabridged Greek Issicon, · Lepadotomachoselachogaleokranioleipsanodrimupotrimmatosilphio parabom elitokatakechumenokichlepikossuph o phat toperisteralektruonoptokephalliokigk lo peleiolagoosirarabophetraga no p t e r u g o n. The Singapore Garrison. A Hongkong exchange received by

German mail says :- The 3rd Madras Light Infantry are going to Singapore as an additional battalion, not to relieve the 16th Madras Infantry already stationed there, as stated last night.' It is the view here, we understand (says the Singapore Free Press of the 10th inst.), that in peace time no regiment would be required to pack up and harry away at so short notice. Much fami. ture and private property would have to be sold off and many arrangements made for taking over, which would be inconvenient throughout the empire, and especially in The Latest Shipping Deal if 'rushed,' for which there is no motive. The usual autumn programme of Indian in question will be inaugurated on or about infantry reliefs has not yet come to the 1st of October next, the delay caused hand, but the expectation is that the 16th will not more to India till December or January, and that till then, at least, both the 3rd and 16th will be accommodated in the present barracks here. Those, at Tanglin for instance, are intended to accommodate a British battalion at full strength, say 1.013. Barracks for British troops in the tropics are roomy, and the cubic air-space allotted far exceeds that in barracks intended for an equal number of eighty. Baron Nishi, the Minister at Period Spanish woman in her room at College, native infantry. Then again as neither the 16th nor the 3rd have been receiving reinforcing drafts from Madras during their tour of service in the Straits and at Hongkong respectively, these two battalions may be assumed as well under strength. It is therefore not difficult to find sufficient room for both, totalling, say, 1,500 men. In due course the 16th Madras Infantry will be relieved by the British bettalion that appears on this year's Army Estimates for duty at Singapore, Then the local garrison will have been brought to its proper strength, that is to say one British and one native battalion. ings of a colliery in Fifeshire. Aug. 28. Five of the coalminers who were entombed in a mine at Donibristle, Eifesbire, owing to the subsidence of moorland, have been rescued alive. A fresh subsidence has interfered with the work of rescuing the others and has entombed two of the rescue party. It is feared that four rescuers who were originally sent into the workings have perished. Irish Members and Tammany.

Aug. 20.-Several newspapers of New York discuss the displeasure which the Trish Nationalist members of the House of Commons expressed at the comparison of them with Tammany, made by the Globe evening newspaper in its article for which it had to appear before the bar of the House on a charge of breach of privilege. The New York papers demand lovalty from the acceptors of Tammany's help. The Brooklyn Eagle, a democratic evening newspaper, states that an Irish-American capitalist simultaneously supported six members of the House of Commons, and that several other American capitalists had apiece supported one or more mambers of the House of Commons with what was virtually Tammany money ... -

A Shocking Explosion.

Aug. 21 -A terrible accident occurred at Dartmoor yesterday. Two sergeants and a constable were engaged unearthing live lyddite shell, when it exploded, men were blown to atoms.

Fire in the Sultan's Palace.

Aug. 19.—The inquiry into the recent fire which took place in the Sultan's Palace has resulted in 704 officials and women servants being deported to Yemen (in the south-west of Arabia). It was reported in June that whilst the Sultan was sleeping in his palace a fire broke out in an empty room next to the one he occupied. After Mr Charles Henry Reynolds, C. I.E., was Lthree-quarters of an hour's hard work, the fire brigade succeeded in extinguishing the fire. The Sultan, it was further stated, was doing everything to discover the cause of the fire, and considerable anxiety existed in regard to the matter, as the origin of the outbreak was unknown."

Russia.

Aug. 26, -Forest fires in Russia caused damage estimated at £10,000. The Daily Mail correspondent states that it is suspected that timber merchants originated the fires in order to secure salvage. The harvest in many districts of Russia &c. is a failure. The only hope is that there will be average crops in the southern and southwestern provinces. Stocks of food in reserve are low.

The 'White Sailor' Legislation. London, Aug. 23.-Directors who are interested in Australian steamers are disturbed at the prospect of the Inter-State Commission Bill of the Commonwealth interfering with them as common carriers. The directors regard the bill as a grave interference with business, and some threaten to withdraw from the service. They further state that fair play demands the interference of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Selby Smelting Works, Vallejo, has been and that every effort should be made to prevent the proposed legislation.

Aug. 28.—The Shipping Federation of bbers had made a tunnel 360ft. in length | Great Britain is discussing the advisability of asking Mr Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, to intervene and prevent the Royal assent being given to the fornia, and had removed bar gold valued at Inter-State Commission Bill and the Customs Bill now before the Commonwealth | THE Steamship Parliament. [Some weeks ago the Australasian Steambloodhounds following them. Subsequently | ship Owners Association sent a cablegram Winters was arrested and confessed to to the shipping federation of Great Britain being one of the robbers. He revealed asking that a deputation should wait upon to the police the whereabouts of the Mr Chamberlain to ask that the Royal assent be refused to the Inter-State Commission Bill. This request is now probably being discussed by the Federation.

Irish Agitators in America. Aug. 19-Messrs. Michael Davitt, ex M.P., and O'Donovan Rossa, the Irish agitator, have addressed a meeting attended by 4000 persons at Chicago. A Reliable Tonic of Remarkable Nutritive and Strengthening Properties.

and later in the disease much suffering may be averted by the employment of the right, remedy. Essentially, consumption is a disease of putrition, as is shown in the rapid loss of flesh and disturbance of the digestion, loss of appetite, etc. Nutrition suffers first and most. Sustain nutrition in the first stage of the disease and the latter will be cured. Hundreds will testify to this truth.

Stearns 'Wine of Cod Liver Oil is an ideal restorative and tissue-builder, a cell-tonic unequalled. Under its influences, the digestive functions perform their best action. The maximum quots of nutriment is obtained from the food. The body is so fortified that it can withstand the progress of disease, disease is checked in its course, and so in an early stage a cure is produced. At all Chemists, and Wholesale from A. S. of oil will go farther than a gallon of vinegar.' The same may be said of children. There is nothing so good for children as the old-fashioned custor oil. However much they abhor it, it is their best medicine for disorders of the box els. In the most severe cases of diarrhoea and dysentery! however, Chamberlain's Colic. Cholora and Diarrhoea Remedy shoul be given after the oil operates, and quick cure is sure to follow. For sale by All Dealers, WATKINS. Ltd., General Robinson Piano Co. Ltd.
